SILVER IGNORANCE IN MAINE.

The Senate silver bill seems to have been named wholly in the interest of the silver barons. It provides for the purchase by government of about the whole of the silver output at "the market price," and what will it be with the sale of the whole crop assured may easily be foreseen. Such an arrangement could not fail to have the effect to artificially raise the price of silver for the benefit of the mine-owners. Our farmers would doubtless be very glad to have the government buy their entire wheat crop at "the market price." And why shouldn't it buy the wheat as well as the silver crop?—Portland Transcript.

The above is a fair sample of how the average editorial mind in the East regards silver. They place it in the same category with wheat and potatoes and do not seem able to discern in it any monetary characteristics.

They also fail to realize that while silver is not a commodity like farm products that farm products are low when silver is low and the poverty stricken Maine farmer will have a still harder row to hoe if silver is kept down.

Looked at from a political standpoint, it should be born in mind that the attitude of the Democrats in 1888 cost the Democrats their defeat and if the Republican party repudiates its pledges, made at Chicago, it will be defeated in 1892.

The coming party is the one that relieves the financial stringency by giving the people more money per capita.

Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson is authority for stating that the Democrats are gradually buying up the newspapers of the country to make a more effective campaign in 1892. If so, the Democrats show a level head. In a campaign the respective parties are like the armies in Napoleon's time and as then "The Lord is on the side of the heaviest artillery." The future political contests will be fought through the press and the kerosene oil torch and the powdered resin flambeaux will go to the junk shop.

Before the tariff was levied on plate-glass, when all that was sold was imported, it cost $1 a square foot. One factory was then built in this country and asked protection, so a tariff of 20 per cent was levied on plate-glass. According to the Free-Traders "a tariff is a tax," and plate-glass should then have cost $1 20 a square foot. But instead of that, the price was soon reduced to 50 cents a square foot.

Patti is making a big kick because the phonograph people have stolen her voice. She is right in objecting, for it would probably have suited her better if her voice could have gone down to posterity in the liquid clearness of twenty years ago when it was in its prime.

Last Thursday a freight team arrived at Bridgeport, the first for four months. A merchant opened his goods when they arrived and found an invoice of whistles, toys, etc., ordered for the Christmas trade last year.—Hawthorne Bulletin.

A Reno man claims that the only thing they have successfully raised at the Reno State University Experiment Station is beans, but the Professors haven't yet analyzed the product sufficiently to know the variety.
